The Wädenswiler Berg from north-west to south-east

This walk takes its time. It crosses Wädenswil at half height, from north-west to south-east, and hardly ever loses sight of the lake. You walk on meadow tracks and through short stretches of woodland, past a farm here, a patch of vineyard there. There is plenty of distance and little climbing — good for a conversation, good for a day when you have nothing to prove to anyone. At the end a hidden gem is waiting, the kind most people miss because it lies off the road.
